One of the better weeks yet, I have begun by setting goals to complete all my assignments in a timely manner. I received my grades for the second week project and portfolio. My research this week is flowcharts because I found out really quick that it's one of my weaknesses. I am confident to finish this class with an A.

This week I posted my anchor points and I truly feel that I have contributed by posting responses to my peers. My time and efforts show that I can begin managing lite to medium projects. The one assignment that I need to practice more is flowcharts. I may have completely failed at it, but it is my first flowchart after all. I have improved on turning in assignments on time this week. I am certified to teach the Gravitec full system. I had to set a strict schedule in order to complete all assignments and work on time. This will relate to my journey by providing the experience I need to manage any size projects.
